China: U.S. Economic Sanctions

Dianne E. Rennack, Foreign Affairs and National Defense Division

Updated October 1, 1997

Abstract. Since 1989, U.S.-China relations have seesawed between cooperation and confrontation. Human rights, arms proliferation, the status to Taiwan and Tibet, and the use of prison labor for export goods, all have given cause to continue sanctions. As well, trade issues—intellectual property rights and Chinese markets closed by tariffs and other restrictions—raise the specter of trade sanctions.

ABSTRACT

This paper presents a history of U.S. economic sanctions imposed against the People's Republic of China for foreign policy reasons since 1949. It highlights sanctions that are currently active and details occasions on which those restrictions have been modified, waived or permanently lifted. The paper provides citations for Presidential authority in current law and the Administration's issuance of regulations and administrative orders.

Summary

The use of sanctions as a foreign policy tool to bring states into conformity with certain international norms, whether on human rights, nonproliferation, aggression, or a number of other issues, plays a central and controversial part in current U.S. foreign policy debates. Much of the authority to impose, waive, or lift sanctions rests with the President. In the case of the People's Republic of China, however, Congress has played an active part in constructing the U.S. sanction regime and, given current tensions, will probably examine the issue of U.S.-China relations in the coming months. To provide a context for such debate, this paper presents a post-World War II history of U.S. economic sanctions imposed against the People's Republic of China. It highlights sanctions currently active and lists occasions on which those restrictions have been waived.

After more than 20 years of nearly nonexistent U.S.-China relations, the process of normalization began in 1971 when trade and travel restrictions were eased. Full diplomatic relations were established in 1979, and a trade agreement was reached the same year. The following decade was one of increasing, but cautious, cooperation and trade.

Relations deteriorated rapidly in 1989, however, when the Chinese government aggressively suppressed a founding pro-democracy movement. In June, when Chinese authorities cracked down on students in Beijing holding peaceful demonstrations in Tiananmen Square, the United States began to recraft its policies toward China and to consider imposing new sanctions. In the wake of the Tiananmen crackdown, the United States suspended arms trade, military exchanges, support in international financial institutions, Overseas Private Investment Corporation and Trade and Development Agency funding, and export licenses for satellites, U.S. Munitions List items and crime control items.

Since 1989, U.S.-China relations have seesawed between cooperation and confrontation. Human rights, arms proliferation, the status of Taiwan and Tibet, and the use of prison labor for export goods, all have given cause to continue sanctions. As well, trade issues--intellectual property rights and Chinese markets closed by tariffs and other restrictions--raise the specter of trade sanctions.

Background

Following its interruption by World War II, when both sides fought the Japanese, the Chinese civil war continued until the communists were victorious in the fall of 1949. While the United States strongly supported the Nationalist government of Chiang Kai-Shek in the immediate post-World War II period, this support was considerably lessened by the time of the communist victory. The United States did not extend diplomatic recognition to the new government of the People's Republic of China. In June 1950, the North Korean army invaded South Korea; and in October 1950, large numbers of Chinese "volunteers" entered the Korean war to fight alongside the North Koreans.

U.S. relations with the People's Republic of China remained extremely hostile until July 1969, when the Nixon Administration began a gradual process of improvement.<sup>1</sup> In May 1973, a U.S. liaison office was established in Beijing.<sup>2</sup> On January 1, 1979, full-scale diplomatic relations were established with the People's Republic of China. Further improvements in U.S.-China relations followed in 1979 with a settlement on May 11 of financial claims and an agreement on trade relations on July 7.<sup>3</sup>

The next decade of U.S.-China relations was marked by increasing cooperation and trade. Political and economic reforms implemented by Deng Xiaoping were welcomed and supported by the United States.

In April 1989, students in Beijing held peaceful demonstrations in Tiananmen Square calling for political liberalization and a dialogue with the leadership. By early May, the demonstrations had spread to other cities and the numbers enlarged by popular support. Having declared martial law on May 1, 1989, President Yang Shangkun ordered troops to Beijing to restore order and on June 3, People's Liberation Army troops were deployed in the Square under orders to regain the capital. In the course of the crackdown that ensued, hundreds, and perhaps thousands, of people were killed or wounded. Massive arrests, executions, and the summary imprisonment of demonstrators and sympathizers followed.

The lead-up to the events in Tiananmen Square and the violent aftermath of the peaceful demonstrations were given extensive coverage by the international press. Calls for U.S. sanctions against the hardline regime in Beijing and a review of U.S. policy were immediate. To express U.S. condemnation of the crackdown, President Bush suspended all arms trade, military exchanges, high-level government exchanges, and sought postponement of multilateral development bank loans. Congress followed that action with legislation restricting export licenses to China for satellites, conditionally withholding International Development Association funding, and conditionally prohibiting Export-Import Bank support of projects in China. In February 1990, Congress passed and the President signed into law extensive restrictions on U.S. aid and export licenses to China in the biennial Foreign Relations Authorization Act. In the years since, however, these restrictions have been substantially modified and weakened.

Since the incidents at Tiananmen Square, two issues in particular--the transfer of nuclear material and missile proliferation--have attracted U.S. attention and, in some cases, have led to the imposition of sanctions. In the 1980s and early 1990s, China supplied nuclear material, equipment, technology, and the design for an atomic bomb to Pakistan, and also provided nuclear assistance to Iran, Iraq, Algeria, Syria, and Russia.<sup>4</sup> After years of U.S. encouragement and increasing economic pressures, China acceded to the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty (NPT) on March 9, 1992. The Central Intelligence Agency reportedly discovered in late 1995, however, that

China had recently exported ring magnets to Pakistan for use in uranium enrichment. Such an export apparently violates the NPT.<sup>5</sup>

In the early 1990s, nonproliferation became the paramount issue in U.S.-China relations. In June 1991, the United States accused corporations run by the government of China of exporting M-11 missile technology to Pakistan, and imposed mandatory sanctions. In November 1991, the Chinese Foreign Minister verbally agreed to abide by the Missile Technology Control Regime (MTCR), and in February 1992, he sent the United States a letter reportedly confirming China's intent to abide by the export constraints of the sanctions were subsequently lifted on March 23, 1992.

Concern remained, however, about the transparency of China's arms and technology export programs. The list of missiles covered by the MTCR was expanded in January 1993 to include all those capable of delivering weapons of mass destruction, changes China has not explicitly endorsed. On August 24, 1993, the United States again found China to have shipped M-11 missile equipment to Pakistan and again imposed sanctions. Those sanctions were lifted on October 4, 1994, after the Chinese Foreign Minister signed a pledge not to export particular missiles. New intelligence reports surfaced in June 1996 that Pakistan has M-11 nuclear-capable missiles that are operational, due to China's shipments.<sup>6</sup>

Reports of Chinese missile technology cooperation and transfers to Iran emerged in the mid-1980s and did not recede. Other reports have China making transfers prohibited by MTCR guidelines to Iran throughout the 1990s, and indicate that shipments may have included ingredients for chemical weapons and SCUD missile fuel. Still other reports state that China may have transferred prohibited technology and goods to North Korea.

Since 1989, U.S.-China relations have seesawed between cooperation and confrontation. Human rights, arms proliferation, the status of Taiwan and Tibet, and the use of prison labor for export goods, all have given cause to continue sanctions. As well, trade issues--intellectual property rights and markets closed by tariffs and other restrictions--raise the specter of trade sanctions.<sup>7</sup>

Sanctions

EARLY 1949 -- SANCTION:                    RESTRICTED TRADE

Status: Superseded

Early in 1949, as the Chinese communists began what was to become their final civil war offensive, President Truman, using the authority of the newly enacted Export Control Act, began to impose selective controls on trade with China. By March 1950, exports to China were as strictly controlled as those to the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe. In the immediate aftermath of the outbreak of the Korean War, the controls were made even stricter.<sup>8</sup>

Authority: Export Control Act of 1949, 63 Stat. 7.

See January 1, 1965, for new export administration regulations.

DECEMBER 1950 -- SANCTION:            TRADE EMBARGO; TRAVEL PROHIBITED

Status: Lifted

In early December 1950, after China's entry into the Korean War, the Commerce Department issued export control regulations effectively embargoing all trade with China. In mid-December 1950, the Treasury Department, using the authority of section 5(b) of the Trading With the Enemy Act, issued Foreign Assets Control Regulations which effectively forbade any financial transactions involving, or on behalf of, North Korea and China, including transactions related to travel. The regulations also blocked the assets of residents of North Korea and the People's Republic of China that were subject to U.S. jurisdiction. The total embargo on economic transactions with China continued until July 1969, when a long-term gradual loosening of controls over Chinese trade began.<sup>9</sup>

Authority: Sec. 5(b) of the Trading With the Enemy Act [P.L. 65-91; 50 U.S.C. App. 5].

See May 7, 1971, for modification; and June 10, 1971, June 11, 1971, and January 31, 1980, for lifting of sanction.

SEPTEMBER 1, 1951 -- SANCTION:        SUSPENDED MFN

Status: Lifted

The Trade Agreements Extension Act of 1951 required the suspension of most favored nation (MFN) trade status for all communist countries, except Yugoslavia.

Authority: Sec. 5 of the Trade Agreements Extension Act of 1951 [65 Stat. 73]; implemented by Presidential Proclamation 2935 [16 F.R. 7635]; Trade Agreement Letter of August 1, 1951 [16 F.R. 7637].

See January 3, 1975, for new legislation of sanction and February 1, 1980, for suspension of sanction.

JULY 14, 1952 -- SANCTION:                      SUSPENDED MFN FOR TIBET

Status: Lifted

After China's occupation of Tibet in 1952, MFN for Tibet was suspended, eliminating the possibility that China could take advantage of the favorable trade status.

Authority: Sec. 5 of the Trade Agreements Extension Act of 1951 [65 Stat. 73]; implemented by Presidential Proclamation 2935 [16 F.R. 7635]; Trade Agreement Letter [17 F.R. 5413].

See January 3, 1975, for new legislation on sanction and February 1, 1980, for suspension of sanction.

AUGUST 26, 1955 -- SANCTION:                      BANNED COMMERCIAL ARMS TRADE

Status: Lifted

The Office of Munitions Control (now the Office of Defense Trade Controls) in the Department of State was responsible for drafting and implementing International Traffic in Arms Regulations (ITAR), which govern the export of defense articles and services. Effective August 26, 1955, the ITAR stated that it was United States policy to ban exports of defense articles and services to, and imports from, certain countries and areas. The People's Republic of China was one of the countries originally listed, but is no longer.<sup>10</sup>

Authority: Sec. 414 of the Mutual Security Act of 1954, (68 Stat. 848), 20 F.R. 6250.

See March 1980 for modification and June 16, 1981, for lifting of sanction.

AUGUST 1, 1962 -- SANCTION:                      PROHIBITED AID

Status: Waived

The Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 was amended in 1962 to prohibit aid to communist countries unless the President certified that it was vital to the national security of the United States. The People's Republic of China (and Tibet) was one of the countries identified as a communist state.

Authority: Sec. 620(f) of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 [P.L. 87-195], as amended by Sec. 301(d)(3) of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1962 [P.L. 87-565].

See December 11, 1985, for modification and waiver of sanction.

JANUARY 6, 1964 -- SANCTION:                    PROHIBITED EXPORT-IMPORT
BANK PROGRAMS

Status: Superseded

The Foreign Assistance Appropriation Act of 1964 prohibited the Export-Import Bank from engaging in financing transactions with those communist countries listed in section 620(f) of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as amended (including China and Tibet), unless the President determined that it was in the national interest and reported so to Congress. The prohibition was reenacted annually in subsequent foreign aid appropriation legislation.

In 1968, the Export-Import Bank Act of 1945 was amended to make the ban and Presidential waiver authority permanent law. A special waiver is required for any transaction of $50 million or more.

In October 1986, section 2(b)(2) of the Export-Import Bank Act of 1945 was amended and restated to prohibit Export-Import Bank guarantees, insurance, or credits for any purchase by Marxist-Leninist countries. The People's Republic of China was on the list of countries identified as being Marxist-Leninist. In addition, Tibet, occupied by Chinese troops since 1952, was on the list.

Authority: Title III of the Foreign Assistance Appropriation Act of 1964 [P.L. 88-258]; Title III of the Foreign Assistance and Related Agencies Appropriation Act, 1965 [P.L. 88-634]; Title III of the Foreign Assistance and Related Agencies Appropriation Act, 1966 [P.L. 89-273]; Title III of the Foreign Assistance and Related Agencies Appropriation Act, 1967 [P.L. 89-691]; Sec. 2(b)(2) of the Export-Import Bank Act of 1945 [P.L. 79-173; 12 U.S.C. 635(b)(2)]; as amended and restated by Sec. 8 of the Export-Import Bank Act Amendments of 1986 [P.L. 99-472].

See April 2, 1980, for waiver of sanction.

See October 15, 1986, for continuation of sanction.

See September 4, 1981, March 7, 1988, September 29, 1988, September 30, 1994, April 21, 1995, and April 21, 1995, for one-time waivers, where amount exceeds $50 million.

See February 28, 1996, for modification of sanction.

JANUARY 1, 1965 -- SANCTION:                    EXPORTS RESTRICTED

Status: Modified

A completely revised system of export control regulations established country groups at various levels of restrictiveness. China was placed in the most severely restricted Country Group Z.

Authority: originally at 15 CFR Part 370; Country Groups are currently at 15 CFR Part 785.

See February 15, 1972, and November 23, 1983, for modification of sanction.

OCTOBER 22, 1968 -- SANCTION:                    PROHIBITED GOVERNMENT-TO-GOVERNMENT ARMS
SALES AND TRANSFERS

Status: Lifted

Section 3 of the Arms Export Control Act, signed into law on October 22, 1968, required that, for a country to become eligible for receiving U.S. defense articles or services, the President must certify that to provide such articles or services will strengthen U.S. security, promote world peace, the recipient country will be transparent about the end-use, the recipient country will guarantee that certain security conditions will be maintained, and that the country is otherwise eligible.

Authority: Sec. 3 of the Arms Export Control Act [P.L. 90-629; 22 U.S.C. 2753].

See June 12, 1984, for lifting of sanction.

MAY 7, 1971 -- MODIFIED:                    TRAVEL PROHIBITION LIFTED

On April 14, 1971, President Nixon announced changes in trade and travel restrictions with China. Effective May 7, 1971, foreign assets control regulations prohibiting currency transactions with China, including those related to travel, were lifted. Other changes included expedited visa processing for individuals and groups travelling to the United States.<sup>11</sup> On September 18, 1971, travel restrictions on U.S.-resident aliens were also lifted.

Authority: 31 CFR Part 500 (36 F.R. 8584); 22 CFR 46.3 (36 F.R. 18643).

See December 1950 for original sanction.

JUNE 10, 1971 -- MODIFIED:                      TRANSACTIONS RELATED TO TRADE

On June 10, 1971, foreign assets regulations were revised to license all transactions relating to Chinese merchandise. The new regulations continued to prohibit transactions involving merchandise where the country of origin was North Korea or North Vietnam.

Authority: 31 CFR 500.204, 500.544, 500.547 (36 F.R. 11441).

See December 1950 for original sanction.

JUNE 11, 1971 -- LIFTED:                      TRADE EMBARGO

Effective June 11, 1971, nonstrategic products and wheat were allowed to be exported to China under general license and, for the first time, commercial imports from China were allowed.<sup>12</sup>

Authority: 31 CFR Parts 371 and 376 (36 F.R. 11808).

See December 1950 for original sanction.

---

FEBRUARY 15, 1972 -- SANCTION:            EXPORTS RESTRICTED

Status: Modified

Just before President Nixon's trip, China was placed in export Country Group Y.<sup>13</sup>

Authority: Originally at 15 CFR Part 370; Country Groups are currently at 15 CFR Part 785.

See January 1, 1965, for original sanction.

See April 25, 1980, November 23, 1983, December 9, 1993, and March 31, 1994, for further modifications of sanction.

JAN. 3, 1975 -- CONTINUED:                RESTRICTED TRADE RELATIONS

Status: Suspended

Passage of the Trade Act of 1974 continued the denial of MFN status to China, but provided a means of conditionally restoring the favorable trade status. Trade relations with nonmarket economies now required that a condition of freedom of emigration be met for access to any U.S. government credits, credit and investment guaranties, and commercial agreements. The President is required to determine that a country does not deny its citizens the right to emigrate and does not impede the process of emigration through the imposition of high taxes or fees. Section 402 ties nondiscriminatory treatment of trade to freedom of emigration conditions, and requires annual review. The President is required to make either annual determinations that waive the freedom of emigration conditions or make semiannual determinations that a country is in full compliance with the emigration requirements.

China's Most Favored Nation (MFN) status had been suspended since 1951.

Authority: Secs. 401, 402, and 502(b)(1) of the Trade Act of 1974 [P.L. 93-618; 19 U.S.C. 2431, 2432, and 2462].

See September 1, 1951, for original sanction; February 1, 1980, for suspension of sanction.

See also May 28, 1993, and May 28, 1994, related to MFN status.

JANUARY 1, 1976 -- SANCTION:                    GENERALIZED SYSTEM OF PREFERENCES STATUS
WITHHELD

Status: Active

Section 502(b)(1) of the Trade Act of 1974 requires any communist country to meet the following conditions for the President to designate it as a "beneficiary developing country," to receive preferential treatment under the Generalized System of Preferences (GSP):

- ! the products of the country receive nondiscriminatory treatment (have met the requirements for MFN);
- ! the country must be a contracting party to the General Agreement on Tariff and Trade (GATT; now World Trade Organization, or WTO), and a member of the International Monetary Fund (IMF); and
- ! the country must not be "dominated or controlled by international communism."

The above requirements are not waivable. Other waivable conditions in section 502(b) address the communist country's practices of nationalization, expropriation, and seizure of property (paragraph (4)); cooperation in arbitration (paragraph (5)); harboring international terrorists (paragraph (6)); and support of internationally recognized standards of workers rights (paragraph (7)). The withdrawal of MFN status in 1951 made China subject to this sanction, effective January 1, 1976.<sup>14</sup>

Authority: Title V of the Trade Act of 1974 [P.L. 93-618; 19 U.S.C. 2461-2466].

JANUARY 31, 1980 -- LIFTED: FOREIGN ASSETS CONTROL

Effective January 31, 1980, Chinese assets were unblocked under foreign assets control regulations.<sup>15</sup>

Authority: 31 CFR Part 500 (45 F.R. 7224).

See December 1950 for original sanction.

FEBRUARY 1, 1980 -- SUSPENDED: RESTRICTION ON TRADE RELATIONS

On October 23, 1979, the President sent to Congress a trade agreement signed by both countries on July 7, 1979, an accompanying proclamation and an executive order waiving the application of Jackson-Vanik requirements to China.<sup>16</sup> On February 1, 1980, the trade agreement and MFN status entered into force.

Trade agreements with nonmarket economy countries must be renewed every three years. The agreement with China has been renewed on the required schedule; the most recent renewal to extend the agreement was issued by the President on June 21, 1996.

MFN status granted to nonmarket economy countries must be renewed annually. The waiver for China has been renewed annually since 1980. The President sent the most recent recommendation for continuation to Congress on May 29, 1997.

Authority: Sec. 402(c), (d), and Sec. 405(b)(1)(B) of the Trade Act of 1974 [P.L. 93-618; 19 U.S.C. 2432(c), (d), and 2435(b)(1)(B)]; Executive Order 12167, October 23, 1979 (44 F.R. 61167).

Trade agreement, authority: Presidential Memorandum of December 23, 1982 (47 F.R. 57653); Memorandum from the President, June 3, 1985;<sup>17</sup> Presidential Proclamation 5718 of October 2, 1987 (52 F.R. 37275); Presidential Memorandum of December 19, 1988 (53 F.R. 51217); Presidential Determination 92-12, January 31, 1992 (57 F.R. 19077); Presidential Determination 96-33, June 21, 1996 (61 F.R. 32631).

MFN extension, authority: Presidential Determination 81-8, June 2, 1981 (46 F.R. 30797); Presidential Determination 82-17, June 2, 1982 (48 F.R. 3711); Presidential Determination 83-7, June 3, 1983 (48 F.R. 26585); Presidential Determination 84-9, May 31, 1984 (49 F.R. 24107); Memorandum from the President, June 3, 1985; Presidential Determination 86-10, June 3, 1986 (51 F.R. 22057); Presidential Determination 87-14, June 2, 1987 (52 F.R. 22431); Presidential Determination 88-18, June 3, 1988 (53 F.R. 21407); Presidential Determination 89-14, May 31, 1989 (54 F.R. 26943); Presidential Determination 90-21, May 24, 1990 (55 F.R. 23183); Presidential Determination 91-36, May 29, 1991 (56 F.R. 26757); Presidential Determination 92-29, June 2, 1992 (57 F.R. 24539); Executive Order 12850, May 28, 1993 (58 F.R. 31327); Presidential Determination 93-23, May 28, 1993 (58 F.R. 31329); Presidential Determination 94-26, June 2, 1994 (59 F.R. 31103); Presidential Determination 95-23, June 2, 1995 (60 F.R. 31047); Presidential Determination 96-29, May 31, 1996 (61 F.R. 29455); Presidential Determination 97-25, May 29, 1997 (unpublished as of May 30, 1997).

MARCH 1980 -- MODIFIED:

ARMS TRADE BAN

In March 1980, it was announced that exports to China of nonlethal items with military support uses would be licensed on a case-by-case basis. The change in policy applied to items such as radar, helicopters, communications and training equipment, and trucks.<sup>18</sup>

See August 26, 1955, for original sanction, and June 16, 1981, for lifting of sanction.

APRIL 2, 1980 -- WAIVED:

PROHIBITION ON EXPORT-IMPORT BANK PROGRAMS

President Carter determined it was in the national interest for the Export-Import Bank to guarantee, insure, extend credit, and participate in the extension of credit in connection with the purchase or lease of any product or service by, for use in, or for sale or lease to, the People's Republic of China.

Authority: Sec. 2(b)(2) of the Export-Import Bank Act of 1945, as amended [P.L. 79-173; 12 U.S.C. 635(b)(2)]; Presidential Determination 80-15, April 2, 1980 (45 F.R. 26017).

AUG. 8, 1980 -- MODIFIED:           OPIC TRANSACTIONS ALLOWED

The Overseas Private Investment Corporation is permitted to operate in the People's Republic of China if the President determines that such activity is important to the U.S. national interest. President Carter made such a determination.

Authority: Sec. 239(g) (redesignated as subsec. (f) in 1981) of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 [P.L. 87-195; 22 U.S.C. 2199(f)]; as amended by Public Law 96-327 [August 8, 1980; 94 Stat. 1026]; Presidential Determination No. 80-25, August 8, 1980 (45 F.R. 54299).

JUNE 16, 1981 -- LIFTED:           BAN ON COMMERCIAL ARMS TRADE

At the end of a visit to China, Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig, Jr., announced that munitions control restrictions against China would be lifted, allowing the sale and export of lethal weapons.<sup>20</sup>

See August 26, 1955, for original sanction.

SEPTEMBER 4, 1981 -- WAIVED:       PROHIBITION ON EXPORT-IMPORT BANK PROJECTS

On September 4, 1981, President Reagan determined that it was in the national interest for the Export-Import Bank to extend two credits for $57 million to China in connection with purchasing turbine generator components, boiler components, air preheaters, and related technology. Section 2(b)(2)(D)(ii) of the Export-Import Bank Act of 1945 requires the President to issue a separate determination when loans equal or exceed $50 million.

Authority: Sec. 2(b)(2) of the Export-Import Bank Act of 1945, as amended [P.L. 79-173; 12 U.S.C. 635(b)(2)]; Presidential Determination 81-12, September 4, 1981 (46 F.R. 45927).

See January 6, 1964, for original sanction.

See October 15, 1986, for continuation of sanction.

NOVEMBER 23, 1983 -- MODIFIED:   RESTRICTIONS ON EXPORTS

On November 23, 1983, China was reassigned to export Country Group V. Controls on some exports to China still remain more stringent than to other group V countries. As it currently stands, there are "certain commodities, data, and end-uses that may require extended review or denial. Of particular concern are exports that would make a direct and significant contribution to nuclear weapons and their delivery systems, electronic and anti-submarine warfare, intelligence gathering, power projection, and air superiority. Licenses may be approved even when the end-user or end-use [is] military. Commodities or data may be approved for export even though they may contribute to Chinese military development."<sup>21</sup>

JUNE 12, 1984 -- LIFTED: GOVERNMENT-TO-GOVERNMENT ARMS SALES PERMITTED

The President determined that China was eligible for government-to-government arms sales.

Authority: Sec. 3(a)(1) of the Arms Export Control Act [P.L. 90-629; 22 U.S.C. 2753].

See October 22, 1968, for original sanction.

DECEMBER 11, 1985 -- WAIVED: PROHIBITION ON AID

Legislation was proposed, but did not become law, in 1982, 1983, and 1984, to allow the President to waive the prohibition on aid to the list of communist countries in section 620(f) of the Foreign Assistance Act.

Section 1202 of the International Security and Development Cooperation Act of 1985 amended section 620(f) to allow the temporary removal of a country from the prohibitions of that section if the President "finds and promptly reports to Congress that: (A) such assistance is vital to the security of the United States; (B) the recipient country is not controlled by the international Communist conspiracy; and (C) such assistance will further promote the independence of the recipient country from international communism."

On December 11, 1985, Secretary of State George Shultz determined that the removal of China and Tibet from the application of section 620(f) was important to the national interest.

Authority: Sec. 620(f) of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 [P.L. 87-195], as amended by the Sec. 1202 of the International Security and Development Cooperation Act of 1985 [P.L. 99-83] [22 U.S.C. 2370]; Department of State Public Notice 953 (51 F.R. 1890).

See August 1, 1962, for original sanction.

DECEMBER 16, 1985 -- SANCTION:      PROHIBITED EXPORTS OF NUCLEAR MATERIALS,
FACILITIES OR COMPONENTS

Status: Active

On July 23, 1985, China and the United States signed a bilateral Agreement for Cooperation Between the Government of the United States of America and the Government of the People's Republic of China Concerning Peaceful Use of Nuclear Energy. When Congress took up the matter, it enacted an approval resolution that conditioned nuclear cooperation under the agreement on presidential certification of certain conditions. No export licenses (including for end-user, transfer, or retransfer) would be issued for nuclear material, facilities, or components covered by the agreement until the President certified that: (1) reciprocal arrangements ensured all goods in question were for peaceful purposes; (2) China had provided additional information regarding its nuclear nonproliferation policies and from such information it could be concluded that China was not in violation of section 129 of the Atomic Energy Act of 1954; and (3) certain terms of the agreement would not prejudice U.S. licensing procedures.<sup>22</sup>

Authority: Public Law 99-183 (99 Stat. 1174).

See February 16, 1990, for further sanctions relating to nuclear cooperation.

OCTOBER 15, 1986 -- SANCTION:      PROHIBITED EXPORT-IMPORT BANK PROGRAMS

Status: Waived

Section 8 of the 1986 Export-Import Bank Act amended section 2(b)(2) of the Export-Import Bank Act of 1945 to prohibit Export-Import Bank guarantees, insurance, or credits for any purchases by Marxist-Leninist countries. In cases determined by the President to be in the national interest, the prohibition could be waived. The People's Republic of China was on the list of countries identified as being Marxist-Leninist. In addition, Tibet, occupied by Chinese troops since 1952, was also on the list.

Authority: Sec. 2(b)(2) of the Export-Import Bank Act of 1945 [P.L. 79-173], as amended and restated by Sec. 8 of the Export-Import Bank Act Amendments of 1986 [P.L. 99-472] [12 U.S.C. 635(b)(2)].

See February 28, 1996, for modification of sanction.

OCTOBER 22, 1987 -- SANCTION:           SUSPENDED HIGH-TECH EXPORTS

Status: Lifted

Stating that the move was a proportional response to Chinese sales of Silkworm anti-ship missiles to Iran, on October 22, 1987, the Reagan Administration suspended the process of gradual liberalization of the sophistication of high-technology items that were permitted to be sold to China.<sup>23</sup>

See March 9, 1988 for lifting of sanction.

MARCH 7, 1988 -- WAIVED:           PROHIBITION ON EXPORT-IMPORT BANK PROGRAMS

President Reagan determined that it was in the national interest for the Export-Import Bank to extend a $151 million credit to China to allow the purchase of equipment and services to build the Shidongkou coal-fired power plant. Section 2(b)(2)(D)(ii) of the Export-Import Bank Act of 1945 requires the President to issue a separate determination when loans equal or exceed $50 million.

Authority: Sec. 2(b)(2) of the Export-Import Bank Act of 1945, as amended [P.L. 79-173; 12 U.S.C. 635(b)(2)]; Presidential Determination 88-11, March 7, 1988 (53 F.R. 9423).

OCTOBER 1, 1989 -- SANCTION:                      SALE OF DEFENSE ARTICLES TO THIRD COUNTRIES RESTRICTED

Status: Expired

The National Defense Authorization Act, FY1989, prohibited defense articles subject to sec. 36(b) of the Arms Export Control Act from being sold to any country that had acquired intermediate-range ballistic missiles from China. The legislation provided broad waiver authority to the President and was applicable only for FY1989.

Authority: Sec. 1307 of the National Defense Authorization Act, FY 1989 [Public Law 100-456].

NOVEMBER 21, 1989 -- SANCTION: WITHHELD FUNDS FOR MDB

Status: Lifted

In the foreign aid appropriations act for FY1990, Congress stipulated that $115 million of the total obligations for the International Development Association (IDA) be withheld until January 1, 1990, and released after that date only if the President certified to Congress that China had not received any new loans from IDA since June 27, 1989, or that the loans would support political reforms. A similar provision was enacted in the FY1991 appropriations bill (see November 5, 1990).

Authority: Title I of the Foreign Operations, Export Financing, and Related Programs Appropriations Act, 1990 [P.L. 101-167].

See January 3, 1990, for lifting of sanction.

NOVEMBER 21, 1989 -- SANCTION: PROHIBITED EXPORT LICENSES

Status: Waived

Sec. 610 of the State Department Appropriations Act, 1990, prohibited the use of funds appropriated for the Departments of Commerce, Justice, State, and the Judiciary to be used to reinstate or approve export licenses for the launch of U.S.-built satellites on Soviet- or Chinese-built vehicles. The prohibition on export licenses could be terminated if the President certified to Congress that China had made progress on political reforms or if the President determined the issuance of licenses was in the national interest.

Authority: Sec. 610 of the Departments of Commerce, Justice, and State, the Judiciary, and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 1990 [P.L. 101-162; 103 Stat. 1038].

See December 19, 1989, for waiver of sanction.

DECEMBER 19, 1989 -- SANCTION: PROHIBITED EXPORT-IMPORT BANK FINANCING

Status: Waived

Notwithstanding other prohibitions on Export-Import Bank programs with China, Congress stipulated that unless certain conditions were met, the Export-Import Bank could not provide financing, credit, guarantees, insurance, or reinsurance for any trade with China. The sanctions could be waived if the President reported to Congress that China had implemented political reforms, including in Tibet, or the President determined it was in the national interest.

Authority: Sec. 103 of the International Development and Finance Act of 1989 [P.L. 101-240; 12 U.S.C. 635 note].

See December 19, 1989, for waiver of sanction.

DECEMBER 19, 1989 -- WAIVED: PROHIBITION ON EXPORT-IMPORT BANK FINANCING

On the same day the President signed the International Development and Finance Act of 1989, he waived the sanctions against China contained in the Act concerning the Export-Import Bank.<sup>30</sup>

Authority: Sec. 103(c)(2) of the International Development and Finance Act of 1989 [P.L. 101-240; 12 U.S.C. 635 note].

JANUARY 1990 -- MODIFIED: SUSPENSION ON MDB LOANS

President Bush reported to Congress that in "January 1990, the Administration modified its position for humanitarian reasons and decided that the United States would support a limited number of World Bank loans to China that [met] basic human needs." The United States supported a $30 million IDA credit for earthquake reconstruction in February, and supported additional credit from IDA for agricultural development in February and for education in March.<sup>32</sup> On May 29, 1990, the World Bank approved a $300 million IDA loan for China. The new loan was for planting trees and fell within the category of addressing basic human needs, a condition attached after the June 1989 deferment on new loans. Two other IDA loans for agricultural development projects, totalling $214 million, were made that summer with U.S. support.<sup>33</sup>

In subsequent years, the United States has supported numerous MDB loans to China, considering them as meeting basic human needs. In 1992, the United States supported $377 million in World Bank loans and $103.6 million in Asian

Development Bank/Asian Development Fund (ADB/ADF) loans to China. In 1993, the United States supported $805 million in World Bank loans and $140 million in ADB/ADF loans. In 1994, the United States supported $1.62 billion in World Bank loans and $318.45 million in ADB/ADF loans. In the first three quarters of 1995, the United States supported $274.5 million in World Bank loans and $167 million in ADB/ADF loans to China.<sup>34</sup>

See June 20, 1989, for original sanction.

See Table I (p. 38), for record of U.S. abstentions or "no" votes on MDB loans to China.

JANUARY 3, 1990 -- LIFTED:

HOLD ON FUNDS FOR MDB

President Bush certified to Congress that the International Development Association (IDA) had not provided any new loans to China since June 27, 1989. Until 1989, China had received large amounts of IDA credits. The President's certification permitted the United States to pay its contribution of $115 million to IDA in November 1990.

Authority: Presidential Determination 90-6, January 3, 1990 (55 F.R. 595).

See November 21, 1989, for original sanction.

FEBRUARY 16, 1990 -- SANCTION:

SUSPENDED CERTAIN PROGRAMS AND ACTIVITIES

Status: Modified

Sec. 902 of the Foreign Relations Authorization Act, Fiscal Years 1990 and 1991, codified some steps the President had already taken against China and required the imposition of additional sanctions to express U.S. condemnation of the Chinese government's actions against pro-democracy demonstrators. The Act required: 1) the continued suspension of Overseas Private Investment Corporation insurance, reinsurance, financing or guarantees; 2) the suspension of obligated funds for new projects by the Trade and Development Agency in China; 3) the continued suspension of exports of any defense article on the U.S. Munitions List (USML), except for systems and components for civil products not destined for the Chinese military or security forces; 4) the prohibition of export licenses for crime control and detection equipment; 5) the continued suspension of U.S. satellite exports; 6) the suspension of nuclear trade and cooperation with China; and 7) the suspension of and opposition to the liberalization of export controls by the Coordinating Committee for Multilateral Export Controls (COCOM).

These sanctions could be terminated in part or wholly if the President reported to Congress that China had made progress on implementing political reforms, including in Tibet. The President was also given the authority to terminate the sanctions if it was determined to be in the national interest.

Authority: Sec. 902 of the Foreign Relations Authorization Act, FY1990 and FY1991, as amended [P.L. 101-246; 22 U.S.C. 2151 note].

See December 16, 1985, for sanction relating to nuclear cooperation.

NOVEMBER 5, 1990 -- SANCTION:      WITHHELD FUNDS FOR MDB

Status: Modified

In the appropriations act for FY1991, Congress stipulated that any U.S. contributions to the International Development Association (IDA) would be reduced proportionate to IDA loans deemed to be for non-basic human needs purposes made to China since January 1, 1990. The withheld funds could only be released after the President had reported to Congress it was in the national interest to do so. A similar provision was contained in the FY1990 appropriations bill (see November 21, 1989).

The Foreign Operations Appropriations for FY1993 continued similar language and added the restriction to U.S. contributions to the Asian Development Bank.

Authority: Title I of the Foreign Operations, Export Financing, and Related Programs Appropriations Act, 1991 [P.L. 101-513; 104 Stat. 1979]; Title I as continued by the Further Continuing Appropriations, FY1992, as amended [P.L. 102-145; 105 Stat. 968]; Title I of the Foreign Operations, Export Financing, and Related Programs Appropriations Act, 1993 [P.L. 102-391; 106 Stat. 1634].

NOVEMBER 30, 1990 -- LIFTED:      SUSPENSION ON HIGH-LEVEL GOVERNMENT EXCHANGES

President Bush and Secretary of State James Baker met in Washington with Chinese Foreign Minister Qian Qichen. According to press reports, the invitation to Qian was in appreciation for China's decision not to vote against resolutions on Iraq in the U.N. Security Council.<sup>35</sup>

It was revealed in December 1989 that President Bush had sent National Security Advisor Brent Scowcroft and Deputy Secretary of State Lawrence Eagleburger to Beijing to confer with Chinese government officials in early July and again on December 9, 1989. The Administration maintained, however, that these visits did not constitute an end to the suspension on high-level government exchanges.<sup>36</sup>

APRIL 30, 1991 -- WAIVED:
PROHIBITION ON U.S.
SATELLITE EXPORTS

President Bush informed Congress of his intention to exercise the waiver authority on the prohibition of export licenses for AUSSAT and FREJA, allowing the satellites to be launched from China. However, the President also upheld the prohibition, in the same communication to Congress, against the export of U.S. satellite components because of proliferation concerns surrounding a Chinese domestic communications satellite, the Dong Fang Hong 3.<sup>37</sup>

Authority: Sec. 902(b)(2) of the Foreign Relations Authorization Act, FY1990 and FY1991, as amended [P.L. 101-246; 22 U.S.C. 2151 note].

MAY 27, 1991 -- SANCTION:
PROHIBITED EXPORT OF MISSILE-RELATED COMPUTER
TECHNOLOGY AND SATELLITES

Status: Lifted

The Administration announced new sanctions against China to restrict the export of missile technology, missile-related computers, and satellites. The White House indicated that as a matter of policy no new waivers of the ban on export licenses for satellites would be issued. In addition, the White House announced its intention to deny export licenses for high-speed computers that could be used to test missiles. The China Precision Machinery Import-Export Corporation and the China Great Wall Industry Corporation were singled out for sanctions.<sup>38</sup>

Action was taken about a month later, on June 25, 1991, when the Secretary of State issued a public notice stating his determination that the two companies had engaged in missile technology proliferation activities. The finding required the imposition of sanctions denying export licenses for items covered by the Missile Technology Control Regime (MTCR) Annex for two years and the denial of U.S. government contracts relating to these same items.

Authority: Sec. 73(a)(2)(A) of the Arms Export Control Act, as amended [P.L. 90-629; 22 U.S.C. 2797(b)(2)(A)]; Sec. 11B(b)(1)(B)(i) of the Export Administration Act of 1979, as amended [P.L. 96-72; 50 U.S.C. App. 2410b(b)(1)(B)(i)]; Department of State Public Notice 1423 (56 F.R. 32601).

SEPTEMBER 1, 1991 -- MODIFIED:      DECONTROL OF CERTAIN EXPORT LICENSES

In its efforts to deregulate export procedures for civilian-use and dual-use goods and technologies, COCOM reduced the control list, eliminating licensing requirements for low-level items exported to China. The Department of Commerce revised Export Administration Regulations to relax some national security controls imposed against China, the Soviet Union, and Warsaw Pact countries since the Cold War. In early 1994, a controversial shipment of gas turbine engines, requiring only a general export license and worth as much as $2 billion, made its way to China.<sup>39</sup>

MARCH 23, 1992 -- WAIVED:                      PROHIBITION ON EXPORT OF ITEMS ON MTCR AND U.S.
GOVERNMENT CONTRACTS

The Bush Administration announced on February 21, 1992, that sanctions, arising from a finding that China had engaged in missile proliferation activities, would be waived for national security reasons. The decision to waive the sanctions came on March 23, 1992, after the Bush Administration received written assurances on February 1 that China would comply with the Missile Technology Control Regime (MTCR) guidelines.<sup>40</sup>

MARCH 23, 1992 -- SANCTION:                      PROHIBITION ON CERTAIN IMPORTS PRODUCED BY
PRISON LABOR

Status: Active

On January 27, 1992, U.S. Customs Service determined that certain diesel engines manufactured by the Golden Horse ("JINMA") Diesel Engine Factory in China were being manufactured with the use of convict, forced, and/or indentured labor, and could therefore be prohibited from importation into the United States, or seized by Customs officials on importation. The prohibition on importation took effect on March 23, 1992.

JULY 13, 1992 -- SANCTION:                    PROHIBITION ON CERTAIN IMPORTS PRODUCED BY
PRISON LABOR

Status: Lifted

On June 2, 1992, U.S. Customs Service determined that tea marketed by the Red Star Tea Farm in China was being produced with the use of convict, forced, and/or indentured labor, and could therefore be prohibited from importation into the United States, or seized by Customs officials on importation. The prohibition on importation took effect on July 13, 1992.

Authority: Sec. 307 of the Tariff Act of 1930 [P.L. 71-361; 19 U.S.C. 1307];
Customs Service T.D. 92-67 (57 F.R. 29935).

See October 5, 1994, for lifting of sanction.

AUGUST 19, 1992 -- SANCTION:                    PROHIBITION ON CERTAIN IMPORTS PRODUCED BY
PRISON LABOR

Status: Active

On July 22, 1992, U.S. Customs Service determined that certain machine presses or mechanical stamping presses manufactured by the Xuzhou Forging and Pressing Machine Works in Jiangsu Province were being manufactured with the use of convict, forced, and/or indentured labor, and could therefore be prohibited from importation into the United States, or seized by Customs officials on importation. The prohibition on importation took effect on or before August 19, 1992.

Authority: Sec. 307 of the Tariff Act of 1930 [P.L. 71-361; 19 U.S.C. 1307]; Customs Service T.D. 92-78 (57 F.R. 36688).

OCTOBER 6, 1992 -- WAIVED:

PROHIBITED INDIRECT AID

Since 1987, Congress has continued a provision in foreign aid appropriations banning indirect aid to specific countries. The People's Republic of China was added to the list of countries for the first time in the Foreign Operations Appropriations Act for FY1993. The provision prohibited the use of any funds appropriated under the Act for indirect assistance to China and other countries unless the President certified that the withholding of funds was contrary to the national interest.

Each subsequent foreign aid appropriations act has continued this prohibition; in each year the President has exercised the waiver authority (see November 4, 1992, for waiver). A waiver for FY 1997 was issued on December 6, 1996.

Authority: Sec. 543 of the Foreign Operations, Export Financing, and Related Programs Appropriations Act, 1993 [P.L. 102-391; 106 Stat. 1672]; Sec. 523 of the Foreign Operations, Export Financing, and Related Programs Appropriations Act, 1994 [P.L. 103-87; 107 Stat. 952]; Sec. 523 of the Foreign Operations, Export Financing, and Related Programs Appropriations Act, 1995 [P.L. 103-306; 108 Stat. 1632]; Sec. 523 of the Foreign Operations, Export Financing, and Related Programs Appropriations Act, 1996 [P.L. 104-107; 110 Stat. 704]; Sec. 523 of the Foreign Operations, Export Financing, and Related Programs Appropriations Act, 1997 [sec. 101(c) of title I of P.L. 104-208; 110 Stat. 3009].

See November 4, 1992, for waiver of sanction.

NOVEMBER 4, 1992 -- WAIVED:

PROHIBITION ON INDIRECT AID

Each year since FY1990, the President has determined it is contrary to the national interest to withhold funds from international financial institutions and other international organizations and programs for providing indirect assistance to certain proscribed countries. Waivers have been issued for each of the fiscal years that China has been listed.

Authority: Sec. 543 of the Foreign Operations, Export Financing, and Related Programs Appropriations Act, 1993 [P.L. 102-391; 106 Stat. 1672]; Presidential Determination 93-4, November 4, 1992 (57 F.R. 55437); Sec. 523 of the Foreign Operations, Export Financing, and Related Programs Appropriations Act, 1994 [P.L. 103-87; 107 Stat. 952]; Presidential Determination 94-4, November 19, 1993 (58 F.R. 63519); Sec. 523 of the Foreign Operations, Export Financing, and Related Programs Appropriations Act, 1995 [P.L. 103-306; 108 Stat. 1632]; Presidential Determination 95-2, November 1, 1994 (59 F.R. 55979); Sec. 523 of the Foreign Operations, Export Financing, and Related Programs Appropriations Act, 1996 [P.L. 104-107; 110 Stat. 704]; Presidential Determination 96-19, March 19, 1996 (61 F.R. 14235); Presidential Determination 97-11A, December 6, 1996 (62 F.R. 299).

DECEMBER 4, 1992 -- MODIFIED:            PROHIBITION ON COMPUTER EXPORTS

It was reported that the Bush Administration was considering approving a license for the export of a supercomputer to China. According to the reports, the Department of Defense and Arms Control and Disarmament Agency opposed the sale on the grounds that the Cray Y-MP2 computer had military applications.<sup>41</sup> The computer was ultimately licensed for export.

See December 9, 1993, for lifting of sanction.

DECEMBER 22, 1992 -- MODIFIED:        SUSPENSION ON ARMS SALES

The State Department announced it was transferring military articles paid for by China prior to the attacks on demonstrators in Tiananmen Square. According to news reports, the articles involved Foreign Military Sales (FMS) of avionics for F-8 aircraft, equipment for munitions production, four antisubmarine torpedoes, and two radars.<sup>42</sup>

Authority: Sec. 38 of the Arms Export Control Act, as amended [P.L. 90-629; 22 U.S.C. 2778].

See June 5, 1989, for original sanction.

JANUARY 5, 1993 -- MODIFIED:            WITHHOLDING OF FUNDS FOR MDB

President Bush determined it was in the national interest of the United States to obligate funds appropriated for the U.S. contribution to the International Development Association during FY1992, which had been withheld because of restrictive provisions concerning China.

Authority: Title I of the Foreign Operations, Export Financing, and Related Programs Appropriations Act, 1991 [P.L. 101-513; 104 Stat. 1979]; Title I as continued by Sec. 119 of the Further Continuing Appropriations, FY1992, as amended [P.L. 102-145; 105 Stat. 968]; Presidential Determination 93-7, January 5, 1993 (58 F.R.4059).

See November 5, 1990, for original sanction.

APRIL 15, 1993 -- WAIVED:                PROHIBITION ON EXPORT-IMPORT BANK PROGRAMS

President Clinton determined that it was in the national interest for the Export-Import Bank to extend a loan of $78 million to China in connection with the purchase of U.S. equipment and services for Qidashan Iron Ore Mine and Benefaction Plant in Liaoning Province. Section 2(b)(2)(D)(ii) of the Export-Import Bank Act of 1945 requires the President to issue a separate determination when loans equal or exceed $50 million.

Authority: Sec. 2(b)(2) of the Export-Import Bank Act of 1945, as amended [P.L. 79-173; 12 U.S.C. 635(b)(2)]; Presidential Determination 93-19, April 15, 1993 (58 F.R. 21889).

See January 6, 1964, for original sanction.

See October 15, 1986, for continuation of sanction.

MAY 28, 1993 -- WAIVED:

TRADE RESTRICTED

President Clinton extended the waiver authority to renew MFN status for China on May 28, 1993. At the same time, he issued an executive order requesting the Secretary of State to assess whether renewal in 1994 would substantially promote freedom of emigration in China, and whether China was complying with a U.S.-China agreement signed in 1992 concerning the use of prison labor. The President further linked the 1994 renewal of MFN for China to Beijing's adherence to the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, release of those detained in connection with the Democracy Wall and Tiananmen Square actions of 1989, general prisoner treatment, protection of Tibet's religious and cultural heritage, and admission into China of international radio and television broadcasts.

One year later, in the course of considering and extending China's MFN into 1995, the President delinked the issue of human rights from trade.<sup>43</sup>

Authority: Executive Order 12850, May 28, 1993 (58 F.R. 31327).

See September 1, 1951, for original sanction; February 1, 1980, for current sanction, and May 28, 1994, for continued waiver of sanction.

JUNE 16, 1993 -- SANCTION:

PROHIBITION ON CERTAIN
IMPORTS PRODUCED BY
PRISON LABOR

Status: Active

On December 30, 1992, the U.S. Customs Service determined that certain sheepskin and leather produced by the Qinghai Hide and Garment Factory in Qinghai Province were being manufactured with the use of convict, forced, and/or indentured labor, and could therefore be prohibited from importation into the United States, or seized by Customs officials on importation. The prohibition on importation took effect on June 16, 1993.

Authority: Sec. 307 of the Tariff Act of 1930 [P.L. 71-361; 19 U.S.C. 1307]; Customs Service T.D. 93-41 (58 F.R. 32746).

AUGUST 24, 1993 -- SANCTION:                    PROHIBITED EXPORT OF MTCR ITEMS AND U.S.
GOVERNMENT CONTRACTS

Status: Waived

The Under Secretary of State for International Security Affairs determined that China's Ministry of Aerospace Industry and Pakistan's Ministry of Defense had engaged in missile technology proliferation activities. The finding required the imposition of sanctions against the two entities and all their subsidiaries, divisions, subunits, or successors, denying export licenses for items covered by the Missile Technology Control Regime (MTCR) Annex for two years and the denial of U.S. government contracts relating to these same items. The finding further imposed such sanctions against Chinese government organizations involved in development or production of electronics, space systems or equipment, and military aircraft.

Authority: Sec. 73(a)(2)(A) of the Arms Export Control Act, as amended [P.L. 90-629; 22 U.S.C. 2797(b)(2)(A)]; Sec. 11B(b)(1)(B)(i) of the Export Administration Act of 1979, as amended [P.L. 96-72; 50 U.S.C. App. 2410b(b)(1)(B)(i)]; Department of State Public Notice 1857 (58 F.R. 45408).

DECEMBER 18, 1993 -- LIFTED:                    PROHIBITION LIFTED ON CERTAIN IMPORTS PRODUCED
BY PRISON LABOR

On November 15, 1993, U.S. Customs Service determined that apparel manufactured by the Qinghe Hosiery Factory in Beijing manufactured with the use of convict, forced, and/or indentured labor, was no longer likely to be imported into the United States, and that the earlier restriction was no longer necessary. The new determination took effect on December 18, 1993.

MARCH 31, 1994 -- MODIFIED:           TERMINATION OF COCOM

The Coordinating Committee for Multilateral Export Controls (COCOM) agreed to cease to exist on March 31, 1994. Member nations agreed to retain current control lists until a successor organization is established. The Department of Commerce, Bureau of Export Administration, established a new general license, GLX, for exporters to Country Groups QWY and the People's Republic of China. Clinton Administration officials said the new license would not apply to telecommunications equipment or lower-level computers.<sup>46</sup>

On December 19, 1995, the United States and 27 other countries, including NATO participants and Russia, agreed to establish a new multilateral export control arrangement. The Wassenaar Arrangement for Export Controls for Conventional Arms and Dual-Use Goods and Technologies ("Wassenaar Arrangement") is expected to be operational sometime in 1996.<sup>47</sup>

MAY 28, 1994 -- SANCTION:           IMPORTATION OF MUNITIONS AND AMMUNITION
PROHIBITED

Status: Active

On May 26, 1994, the President announced that he would renew MFN status for China, but delinked the extension from human rights conditions imposed a year earlier. He also announced that, effective May 28, importation of munitions and ammunition from China would be prohibited. Department of Treasury and Department of State regulations provide that "it is the policy of the United states to deny licenses and other approvals with respect to defense articles and defense services originating in certain countries.... This policy applies to countries or areas with respect to which the United States maintains an arms embargo..."<sup>48</sup>

AUGUST 23, 1994 -- SANCTION:                    PROHIBITED U.S. PAYMENTS TO UNFPA FROM BEING MADE AVAILABLE TO PROGRAMS IN CHINA

Status: Active

The Foreign Operations Appropriations Act for FY1995 prohibited U.S. contributions to the United Nations Population Fund (UNFPA) from being made available for programs in China. If it was reported that UNFPA spent in excess of $7 million in China in 1995, U.S. payments to the UNFPA would be reduced by the amount over $7 million. This restriction was enacted again in the FY1996 Foreign Operations Appropriations Act. For FY1997, the Foreign Operations Appropriations Act required that: 1) no funds are allocated for UNFPA be made available for activities in China; 2) FY1997 for UNFPA are limited to $25 million; and 3) U.S. payments to UNFPA are reduced by the amount that that organization expends in China.

JUNE 22, 1995 -- MODIFIED:

RESTRICTIONS ON CERTAIN CRYPTOGRAPHIC ITEMS LIFTED

President Clinton informed Congress on June 22, 1995, that it was in the national interest of the United States to terminate the suspension of license issuance for export to China with respect to certain cryptographic items covered by category XIII on the USML. Licenses are required and applications are reviewed on a case-by-case basis by the Departments of State and Defense.<sup>49</sup>

JANUARY 22, 1996 -- MODIFIED:

RELAXATION OF LICENSE REQUIREMENTS FOR COMPUTERS

Status: Phasing out (see March 25, 1996).

On October 6, 1995, President Clinton announced a liberalization of export controls on most computers. For China, the former Soviet Union, and certain other countries, export controls would focus on computers intended for military and proliferation end-use, but would otherwise ease controls on exports for computers to civilian end-use. On January 22, 1996, the Department of Commerce issued interim Export Administration Regulations (EAR). The new EAR removed the term "supercomputer" from regulations, streamlined the licensing process, and attempted to anticipate the technological developments in computers for the next two years. Under the new EAR, a new 4-tier system of licensing is established. China, Vietnam, Pakistan, countries of Middle East, Maghreb, the former Soviet Union, and several Eastern European countries are in Tier 3. Exports to Tier 3 countries are authorized under General License G-DEST for computers less than or equal to 2,000 MTOPS. Exports of computers greater than 2,000 but less than 7,000 MTOPS are authorized under General License G-CTP. Where concerns arise if end-use is military, nuclear, chemical, biological or missile related, licenses will be reviewed on a case-by-case basis.

Hong Kong and Taiwan, in Tier 2, are eligible for computers of less than 10,000 MTOPS without a validated license.

FEBRUARY 28, 1996 -- SANCTION:            EXPORT-IMPORT BANK FINANCING POSTPONED

Status: Expired

Amidst reports that China had shipped ring magnets to Pakistan in 1995, and was otherwise supporting Pakistan's nuclear weapons program, the Clinton Administration asked the Export-Import Bank to postpone any financing for U.S. companies planning to export to China until March 23, 1996.<sup>51</sup>

The month-long postponement expired, and the Export-Import Bank was not expected to take up any China financing in the month of April.

Other sanctions are being considered, and U.S.-China negotiations are underway regarding future Chinese technology exports.

MARCH 25, 1996 -- MODIFIED:                    EXPORT ADMINISTRATION REGULATIONS REWRITTEN

The Bureau of Export Administration, Department of Commerce, issued new interim Export Administration Regulations (EAR) on March 25, 1996, which reorganized the licensing process and categories of restricted licenses for exportation. The interim regulations go into effect on April 24, 1996, and compliance with the new EAR is required no later than November 1, 1996. In the meantime, current licensing procedures are reclassified at 15 CFR 770A-799A.

The new EAR are not intended to change policy, but only to streamline the licensing process. In the new EAR, generally, China:

- ! is ranked in Tier 3 for computer exports, making it eligible for License Exception CTP for computers with a Composite Theoretical Performance (CTP) greater than 2,000 MTOPS but less than or equal to 7,000 MTOPS (Hong Kong and Taiwan, in Tier 2, are eligible for computers of less than 10,000 MTOPS with a License Exception CTP). License Exception CTP does not authorize export for military end-users and end-uses, and nuclear, chemical, biological, or missile end-users and end-uses. Such exports require a license and are considered on a case-by-case basis.
- ! is placed on the Country Group D list, specifically restricting exports under national security controls (D:1 subgroup), chemical and biological controls (D:3 subgroup), and missile technology controls (D:4 subgroup).
- ! separate from the country group list, is subject to licensing, restricted, and in some cases prohibited, for export in the following categories: chemical and biological, nuclear nonproliferation, national security, missile technology, regional stability, and crime control.

JUNE 23, 1996 --WAIVED:*PROHIBITION ON U.S.
SATELLITE EXPORTS

President Clinton reported to Congress that it was in the national interest to terminate the terms prohibiting defense article and satellite exports to China insofar as such prohibitions were applicable to the Hughes Asia Pacific Mobile Telecommunications project. Export licenses were still required and would be considered on a case-by-case basis.<sup>54</sup>

Authority: Sec. 902(a) and (b)(2) of the Foreign Relations Authorization Act, FY1990 and FY1991 [P.L. 101-246; 22 U.S.C. 2151 note].

NOVEMBER 11, 1996 -- WAIVED:*PROHIBITION ON EXPORT-IMPORT BANK PROGRAMS

President Clinton determined that it was in the national interest for the Export-Import Bank to extend a loan of about $383 million to China in connection with the purchase of the nonnuclear balance of plant equipment and services from the United States for the Qinshan III nuclear power plant in Zhejiang Province. Section 2(b)(2)(D)(ii) of the Export-Import Bank Act of 1945 requires the President to issue a separate determination when loans equal or exceed $50 million. Authority: Sec. 2(b)(2) of the Export-Import Bank Act of 1945, as amended [P.L. 79-173; 12 U.S.C. 635(b)(2)]; Presidential Determination 97-2, November 11, 1996 (61 F.R. 59805).

See January 6, 1964, for original sanction.

See October 15, 1986, for continuation of sanction.

NOVEMBER 11, 1996 -- WAIVED: PROHIBITION ON EXPORT-IMPORT BANK PROGRAMS

President Clinton determined that it was in the national interest for the Export-Import Bank to extend a loan of about $409 million to China in connection with the purchase of U.S. equipment and services for the Yangcheng coal-fired power plant in Shanxi Province. Section 2(b)(2)(D)(ii) of the Export-Import Bank Act of 1945 requires the President to issue a separate determination when loans equal or exceed $50 million.

Authority: Sec. 2(b)(2) of the Export-Import Bank Act of 1945, as amended [P.L. 79-173; 12 U.S.C. 635(b)(2)]; Presidential Determination 97-3, November 11, 1996 (61 F.R. 59807).

See January 6, 1964, for original sanction.

See October 15, 1986, for continuation of sanction.

MAY 21, 1997 -- SANCTION:

PROCUREMENT CONTRACTS WITH, IMPORTATION FROM CERTAIN INDIVIDUALS AND COMPANIES PROHIBITED

Status: Active

The State Department issued a public notice on May 21, 1997, determining that eight entities and persons had engaged in chemical weapons proliferation activities that required the imposition of sanctions. For one year or more, the U.S. Government is prohibited from entering into procurement contracts and importation is prohibited from the following Chinese individuals: 1) Liao Minglong, 2) Tian Yi, 3) Chen Qingchang, 4) Pan Yongming, and 5) Shao Xingsheng. The same prohibitions apply to the following Chinese companies: 1) Nanjing Chemical Industries Group, or NCI; 2) Jiangsu Yongli Chemical Engineering and Technology Import/Export Corporation; and 3) Cheong Yee Limited (of Hong Kong).

Authority: Sec. 81(a) of the Arms Export Control Act, as amended [P.L. 90-629; 22 U.S.C. 2798(a)]; Sec. 11C(a) of the Export Administration Act of 1979, as amended [P.L. 96-72; 50 U.S.C. App. 2410c(a)]; Department of State Public Notice 2551, May 21, 1997 (62 F.R. 28304).
